

2020-2021 Virtual Conference Series

Advancing Equality at Work and Home: Strengthening Science and Collaboration

Work and Family Researchers Network
5th Biennial Conference

Owing to the global pandemic, the WFRN rescheduled its 2020 conference (which was originally planned for New York City) into a set of Virtual Conference Events that occur on the second Friday of most months beginning in July 2020 and extending through April 2021. Virtual events are live and recorded and are only accessible to those who have registered. Registration is now closed.

VIRTUAL CONFERENCE SERIES PROGRAM

If you are a conference registrant, you will receive reminder emails of upcoming live events and information on how to participate. To access the full program, complete with links to the live sessions and recorded presentations, you will need the password that you have already been provided. The full program can be viewed here: 2020 Virtual Conference Series Password Protected Program

If you are not a conference registrant, you can view the program (without live event links or recordings) by clicking this link: 2020 Virtual Conference Series Public Access Program

CALL FOR PAPERS

Community, Work & Family Special Issue: Advancing Equality at Work and Home: Possibilities for Change and New Frontiers.

Heejung Chung, Ameeta Jaga, and Susan Lambert, representatives of the Work and Family Researchers Network, are editing a special issue of the journal Community, Work & Family. We seek submissions that offer new perspectives into advancing equality at work and home that address the persistent work-life challenges experienced by workers across the world. The aim of the special issue is to further knowledge on inequality at work and home and realistic pathways for reducing it, by attending to the intersectionally complex nature of work and family in diverse contexts. Earlier versions of the articles should have been (or is planned to be) presented at the 2020/21 WFRN Virtual Conference series OR at the 2018 WFRN Conference. For more information click here.

RECORDED PRESENTATIONS

The WFRN is committed to disseminating reliable scholarship on work-family concerns. For that reason, we are making all of the recorded presentations from the 2020 Virtual Conference Series available to the global community. Recorded presentations can be found by clicking here. An index of recorded presentations can be found in the Virtual Conference Series Program (above).
